

MARGE OEHLKE

WORK ENVIRONMENT

As a postmaster when I first started at the post office, my very first post office, as postmaster, I think customers were a little surprised at first, they had had males in that office as postmasters for all of the years prior to my arrival at the post office and my appointment, but I think between the modern dates I gave to you, in the office, because of the knowledge of the postal office functions and procedures, that, you know, I was able to help my customers and also I think and I'm not one to pat myself on the back and please don't put that (MARGE: laughing) into your interview, I think because of the friendly disposition, before you know it, the whole community, they welcomed me with open arms because of all of those things.
