

Dianne Williams transcript

Family Life

Well I was married when I came into the postal service, and I worked nights. Almost everybody who comes in the door at that time went to nights, because it was like the senior, senior employees who had the day job. So it was a foregone conclusion that if you came in you were going to nights, you were going to work something like 3 to 11:30 or midnight to 7 in the morning. And that's kind of rough on a family life and I had 3 kids and I think it really puts a strain on family life too.